Social Prescribing Link Worker Impact Case Study

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Referred on for longer term counselling by myself as waiting list too long for Clarity</li></ul> Quote “ S has been fantastic in that she has taken the time to help and offer so much to us as a family get back on our feet after being sent from agency to agency and not getting anywhere. She has really listened for the first time to both our needs whereas previously this hasn't been the case, we both have hope now and feel less overwhelmed and in control of our lives. Thank you, a brilliant service, “
Tips for others or future plans (optional)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Always have a framework/holistic assessment on initial consultation, that way nothing gets overlooked</li><li>• Active listening, paraphrasing and being a “Skilled helper”</li><li>• Good to stimulate dialogue around personal resilience and capitalise on this ie C`s ability to be a great mum despite being in constant pain but also overcoming real adversity in the past and being brave enough to embrace counselling. R`s ability to let go and embrace some new possibilities and create time and space for himself</li><li>• Always good to explore what`s going on for the patient rather than making assumptions especially Chronic health – celebrate “Patient being expert in their own health condition” – be aware of unconscious bias and need to rescue</li><li>• Explore person centred support and strength based approached</li><li>• Useful to use solution focused techniques esp when one is stuck</li><li>• Always important to research what you`re referring the patient to, so determine the service is right for them but also considering quality assurance, safeguarding issues etc.</li><li>• Really important to offer impartial nonbiased support</li><li>• Good to start with graded plan so not to overwhelm</li><li>• Good to work towards discharge maybe 4 sessions in</li><li>• Useful to give task &amp; guided self-help to enable a sense of control and responsibility</li></ul>
